Self-compassion is a process of self kindness and accepting suffering as a quality of being human. It has positive effects on subjective happiness, optimism, wisdom, curiosity, agreeableness, and extroversion. Kristin Neff and Christopher Germer have identified that there are three levels of activities that thwart self-compassion and they are self-criticism, self-isolation and self-absorption ...

Compassionate leave: Taking time off for a bereavement. When someone close dies, the last thing most people want to do is trawl through their contract of employment to see whether they are entitled to any compassionate leave. Neither would most people relish the prospect of an awkward conversation with a line manager, having to explain who died in order to justify a short period away.

I don't think CFT ever offers to turn one's life into one full of 'prosperity, happiness, love...' There are plenty of therapies and related practices that make a case for that, but CFT is much more about tolerating distress, working with self criticism, etc. Developing a compassionate mind can be transformative, and there is an increasingly body of research to suggest CFT is effective ...
