In contract theory and economics, information asymmetry deals with the study of decisions in transactions where one party has more or better information than the other. This asymmetry creates an imbalance of power in transactions, which can sometimes cause the transactions to go awry, a kind of market failure in the worst case. Examples of this problem are adverse selection, moral hazard, and ...

Information entropy is the average rate at which information is produced by a stochastic source of data.. The measure of information entropy associated with each possible data value is the negative logarithm of the probability mass function for the value: $H = -\sum p_i \log p_i$. When the data source has a lower-probability value (i.e., when a low-probability event occurs), the event carries more ...
